Winter Break: It is essential to have a proper workspace for anyone to be productive. Your workstation is your work zone and, if it is not functional, it can impede creativity, the completion of tasks, and workflow. Think about it, don't we all just hate it when we find a scribble desk. It is proven again and again that a well-organized space boosts productivity and allows students to better focus on work. It's quite therapeutic, really. Students and creative people such as artists, writers, readers etc., are among those with the messiest desks! Given how important it is to be focused and achieve our work goals, it is wise to spend some time cleaning and organizing our desks, rather than waste hours in some unproductive work.

Our aunts thought to teach students the value of spick and span space, painted the desks and benches to welcome our students for the coming year.
